FARM UPDATES IN PHOTOS

The FFF water dam as of the end of last week. The level of the water has surpassed the level of the previous years, indicating positive chances of having a full dam this year. With a full dam the farm will be able to have a winter crop this year and also be able to start early on the next crop season to manage isolation with the neighboring maize farmers. But in our new Business plan for the coming 10 years, we want to secure more water by drilling 4 boreholes on the farm, and pumping water from the seasonal river. By having enough water, our business will grow.

Aerial shots of the FFF farm showing the status of the maize crop in the field from the earliest planted seed maize to the last planted maize crop on the leased 100 ha land. We will start harvesting the earliest planted seed maize latest in May.

Macadamia trees Thriving!

We are happy to share the fantastic progress of our 435 macadamia trees, planted with care and dedication in Sept 2022. Under the close management of our skilled agronomist, these trees are displaying robust growth and development, promising a bountiful future for our farm.

The 22,000 trees planted towards the end of 2023 are also showing remarkable growth and adaptability to their new environment. This positive trend indicates a bright future for our macadamia plantation. In the upcoming years, these macadamia trees are poised to become a game-changer not only for the FFF Farm but also for our entire community. The anticipated yield and quality of the macadamia nuts will not only benefit our farm economically but will also bring prosperity and opportunities to all members of our community.
